I am originally from Kansas City.

I got my start in the biz through a friend who referred me to a producer at James Productions. My first job was as a wardrobe assistant on a Sears shoes commercial.

I'm currently working as a food and prop stylist, but have worked as a coordinator, PM and producer.

The project I'm most excited about is the yet to be discovered, unlimited potential for future ventures.

In ten years I see myself writing.

The best part about being a member of MN WIFT is being part of a collective group of creative and talented women.

I think we can strengthen the community of women in production by supporting and promoting projects inspired and created by women.

Most people don't know that I most likely knew them in a past life.

If I could be anywhere in the world right now I would want to be in the splendor of the each moment.

Three people I would love to meet:

My great, great, great, great maternal grandmother
Joseph Campbell
Sidonie-Gabrielle Colette
