I am from Minneapolis.

I got my start in the biz KSTP's daily talk show Good Company in the early 90s.

I am currently working as a Film Professor at Northwestern College and Program Director for Story Board, a nonprofit that provides film education and mentoring to high school students.

The project I am most excited about is Long Nose, Short Films: Teen Filmmakers Re-imagine Pinocchio, a collaborative project between Story Board and the MN Opera. The final event is a film festival at the Parkway Theater on February 12.

In ten years I see myself as a working director and professor.

The best part about being a member of MN WIFT is the fun Christmas party! I appreciate all the social networking opportunities and plan to participate more in 2009.

I think we can strengthen the community of women in production by sharing resources, ideas and projects.

Most people don't know that I spent last summer digging up my backyard in hopes of creating a lovely outdoor living space; the yard is a disaster. Maybe next summer.

If I could be anywhere in the world right now it would be Belize. Mid January I worked down there for a week; our winter "wonderland" is brutal!

Three people I would love to meet are Barack Obama, Clint Eastwood and my great grandfather.
